A photograph of a residential street that has been flooded. The water is murky and reflects the sky and buildings. In the foreground, a triangular warning sign with a red border and the word 'Flood' in black text on a white background is placed on the pavement. The sign is supported by a black metal frame. The street is lined with two-story houses, some with stone walls. A person in a high-visibility vest is visible in the distance. The sky is overcast.
